Benefits of AIM VCTs

Access to “Larger” Smaller Companies:

- AIM-listed companies are small, but by no means minnows. Companies listed on AIM have an average market cap of £98.9m.
- As at December 2018, the companies in the VCT portfolio (excluding FTSE 100 companies held for liquidity management) had an average market cap of £92.6m, average annual turnover of £30.7m per annum and average pre-tax profit of £0.7m per annum.

Price and Portfolio Transparency:

- Because AIM stocks are listed on an official exchange, their share prices are marked to market on a daily basis, as opposed to the predominantly unquoted investments held by generalist VCTs, which are typically only valued and reported on a quarterly basis at best.

Potential for Growth:

- Smaller quoted companies are historically proven to deliver superior total returns over the long term.
- Smaller companies tend to be under-researched compared to their larger counterparts. This creates opportunities for experienced investment managers, that specialise in smaller companies, such as Unicorn, which has a strong track record in finding value in AIM stocks.

Risk Factors

Investors should read the Prospectus and take appropriate financial advice before investing. Set out below are some, not all, of the key risks:

- Liquidity Risk: the secondary market for VCT shares is generally illiquid and the shares may trade at a significant discount to Net Asset Value
- Taxation Risk: the tax reliefs referred to in this document are described in accordance with Unicorn's interpretation of current tax legislation, rules and practice, which are subject to both change in the future and change in an individual investor's personal circumstances. If an investor disposes of their shares within five years of issue, they will be subject to clawback by HMRC of any income tax reliefs claimed. Whilst it is the intention of the VCT to be managed to maintain VCT qualifying status there can be no guarantee that such status will be maintained. If the VCT does cease to qualify, investors may lose all tax benefits.
- Capital Risk: past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of VCT shares can go down as well as up and investors may lose some or all of their money.
- Underlying Investment Risk: the VCT will invest in smaller, AIM-listed companies, that by definition, will be higher risk than larger companies. The VCT may also be constrained in its ability to realise investments in such companies in order to maintain its tax status. Such factors may affect the VCT's performance.
- Dividend Risk: The VCT will only pay dividends to investors where it has distributable reserves & cash available for that purpose.
